rivers of the mind
streams of consciousness ever flowing, only partially observed objects of time, but subjects of i, you, he, she, it what we all need is a reservoir of reflection constantly collecting . . . gradually mixing . . .
independent streams of life until happiness is generated

Faces/Ed Reed, Terri Tracy

the crowd hisses and boos and cheers and claps spontaneously multi-colored and speckled the lights keep changing hypnotized they look straight ahead their faces belong to the crowd not to each other and the wise white-haired old sailor who waits by the wishing well holds back the tears and smiles sadly sorrow breeds fear until they turn on the sound and the child innocent teaches them to sing the old sailor starts as the waters burst through the break the crowd sings and dances in the drowning waves eyes flinch as their thoughts save them only words bring alienation a single sparrow flies overhead freedom wings the sky love rings out in laughter but amidst the laughter . . .

there will always be the tears sadly she sighs that she is lonely the others reveal their secrets silently knowingly their eyes touch each other if only each could speak sooner perhaps the rain would pause gladly for the sun

if only the faces would focus perhaps in every eye there would be a different gleam each voice has a single lovely song to sing but as yet they only whisper the wise white-haired old sailor whistles softly

i want to help you face . . .
tomorrow

open house at justin tonight who's making the next run?
i need a ride to south side i'll never drink again

Hair.
not the style that counts.
it's what's under it.

gotta paper due tomorrow to hell with it
i'm pulling an all-nighter what's on t.v.?

i got another traffic ticket what stats test?
i thought it was next week when's the party?
there's a hall meeting tonight

wake me up at seven i'm not going to class
take my paper for me
what time is it?
gotta heavy date tonight

what happened last night?
better help put him in bed i don't know but i'm still seeing things somebody borrowed my . . .
sorry, i have to do laundry today

Halleck/Mary Witzke, Ted Biven, Terri Tracy inside fluorescent night students exist timelessly under the big top seeking the "fat lady" among the freaks who dances to the reverie of night and day minds while the marching band keeps time clowns wear masks that crack and laughing boy starts screaming save me struggling jugglers bounce words amidst applause the lion tamer who devoured the words sees them all on tight ropes snapping out on string only the grinning ringmaster knows all the ropes the crowd keeps crossing cords until the trapeze guy teaches them to fly and reach the sky sam the man keeps looking up searching for the balloon the midget sells he's bought the books and borrowed the words that burst like bubbles the magician knows the secret words aren't written yet or used only the invisible is real pool sharks and ping-pong players downstairs dealing cards drinking coke and coffee borrowing cigarettes and dimes staring at that blank screen mesmerized maddening melodies echo our lives and quarters in the jukebox subdue our insanity whip cream pies and peanuts the sideshow knight downs three jellos in seconds for the crowd that claps to keep alive traffic pouring in and out no admission fee faces crash and collide in the chaos and the noise they stop by two's secure in simplicity after the songs are sung and students stray roust-abouts ravel remnants dim the lights

and lock the cages

silence rains

Faculty / Administration

We See Them Only In One Place, Picture Them In One Role

Often we wonder if they are really human, if they can be understanding, if they know how to relax, be tender. Yet, when they leave the confines of the classroom or the office, behold, the unseen metamorphosis!

Pumas Hunt The Evasive Shadow Of Success

Call it close, call it tough, or just plain bad luck; whatever, victory for the '70-'71 Puma was truly "one step beyond the efforts of those who tried."

Football was by far the winningest sport but when the chips were down Evansville held onto its eight-point lead just long enough to deny the Pumas their first ICC football crown in 13 years. Even the defending NCAA Great Lakes Regional Basketball Champs couldn't put it together long enough to finish above .500.

The spring sports scene also left the ardent Puma fans little to cheer about. Baseball fell five games short of a winning season while the tennis and track teams suffered through a winless year. The lone bright spot was a young golf squad that improved rapidly and finished 6-5.

Although the losses outnumbered the wins, Puma Spirit remained high with the cheerleading help of Marcel Fortman, Susan Dolecki, Linda Gelatka, Susan Smith, Jane Ellspermann, Rosalyn Ruda and Victoria Sugar.

COLLEGE REPUBLICANS, YOUNG DEMOCRATS, POLITICAL SCIENCE CLUB Foster Political Awareness; STUDENT ASSOCIATION Governs Campus Issues

"Treat students like adults," says Personnel Dean Jerry Hughes. Keep the lines of communication open. Involve more students. "If it is going to happen at S.J.C., it must start with the students."

Thus was the seed of campus life planted. Nurtured by the capable hands of the Student Association, (far right: Dennis Boyle, Vice-President; Robert Neville, Secretary; Dr. Sleeman, Faculty Advisor; Anthony Vaccarello, Senate President; Fred Giel, President; Edward Poropat, Treasurer) it grew, ever so slowly — Association Concert, mini-concerts, Mardi Gras, "Trash of the Thirties," student representatives on the Board of Trustees, an active Student Senate — until it blossomed into the dorms — refrigerator rentals, open houses, dorm-sponsored parties, liberalized drinking policies. What we now have are the beginnings of a strong family tree.

Rivers of the mind; streams of individuals; constantly gathering, gradually mixing until Saint Joseph's College is generated. What they all need is a reservoir of reflection. Phase '71 is that reservoir of reflection, that mirror of moods.

At this time we would like to commit to memory the names of five individuals who in their own special way have influenced the growth of our campus community: Reverend Joseph Hiller, C.PP.S., Professor Emeritus of German; Walter Voica; Jill Jaskolka; Pat Brown; and Bill Knight.

To most of us they were five nameless faces in a multi-faceted crowd. To those who knew them well, the pain echoed by their loss is great. But the rivers of life continue flowing, never stopping, only pausing, to be observed and remembered.

Acknowledgements: Our gratitude is extended to our News Bureau Director and Advisor Chuck Schuttrow, for his patience and guidance; to his wife Delores; to Taylor yearbook representative Jim Bell; to Denny Lavery for his assistance and to those who have offered suggestions or constructively criticized existing ideas.
